BLUE APPLE

AGOOLIK

from

The Arctic

To keep warm and cozy
In their snowy, icy land,
Arctic girls wear boots and parkas
And a mitten on each hand.

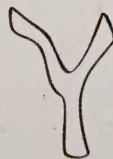

NYAGA

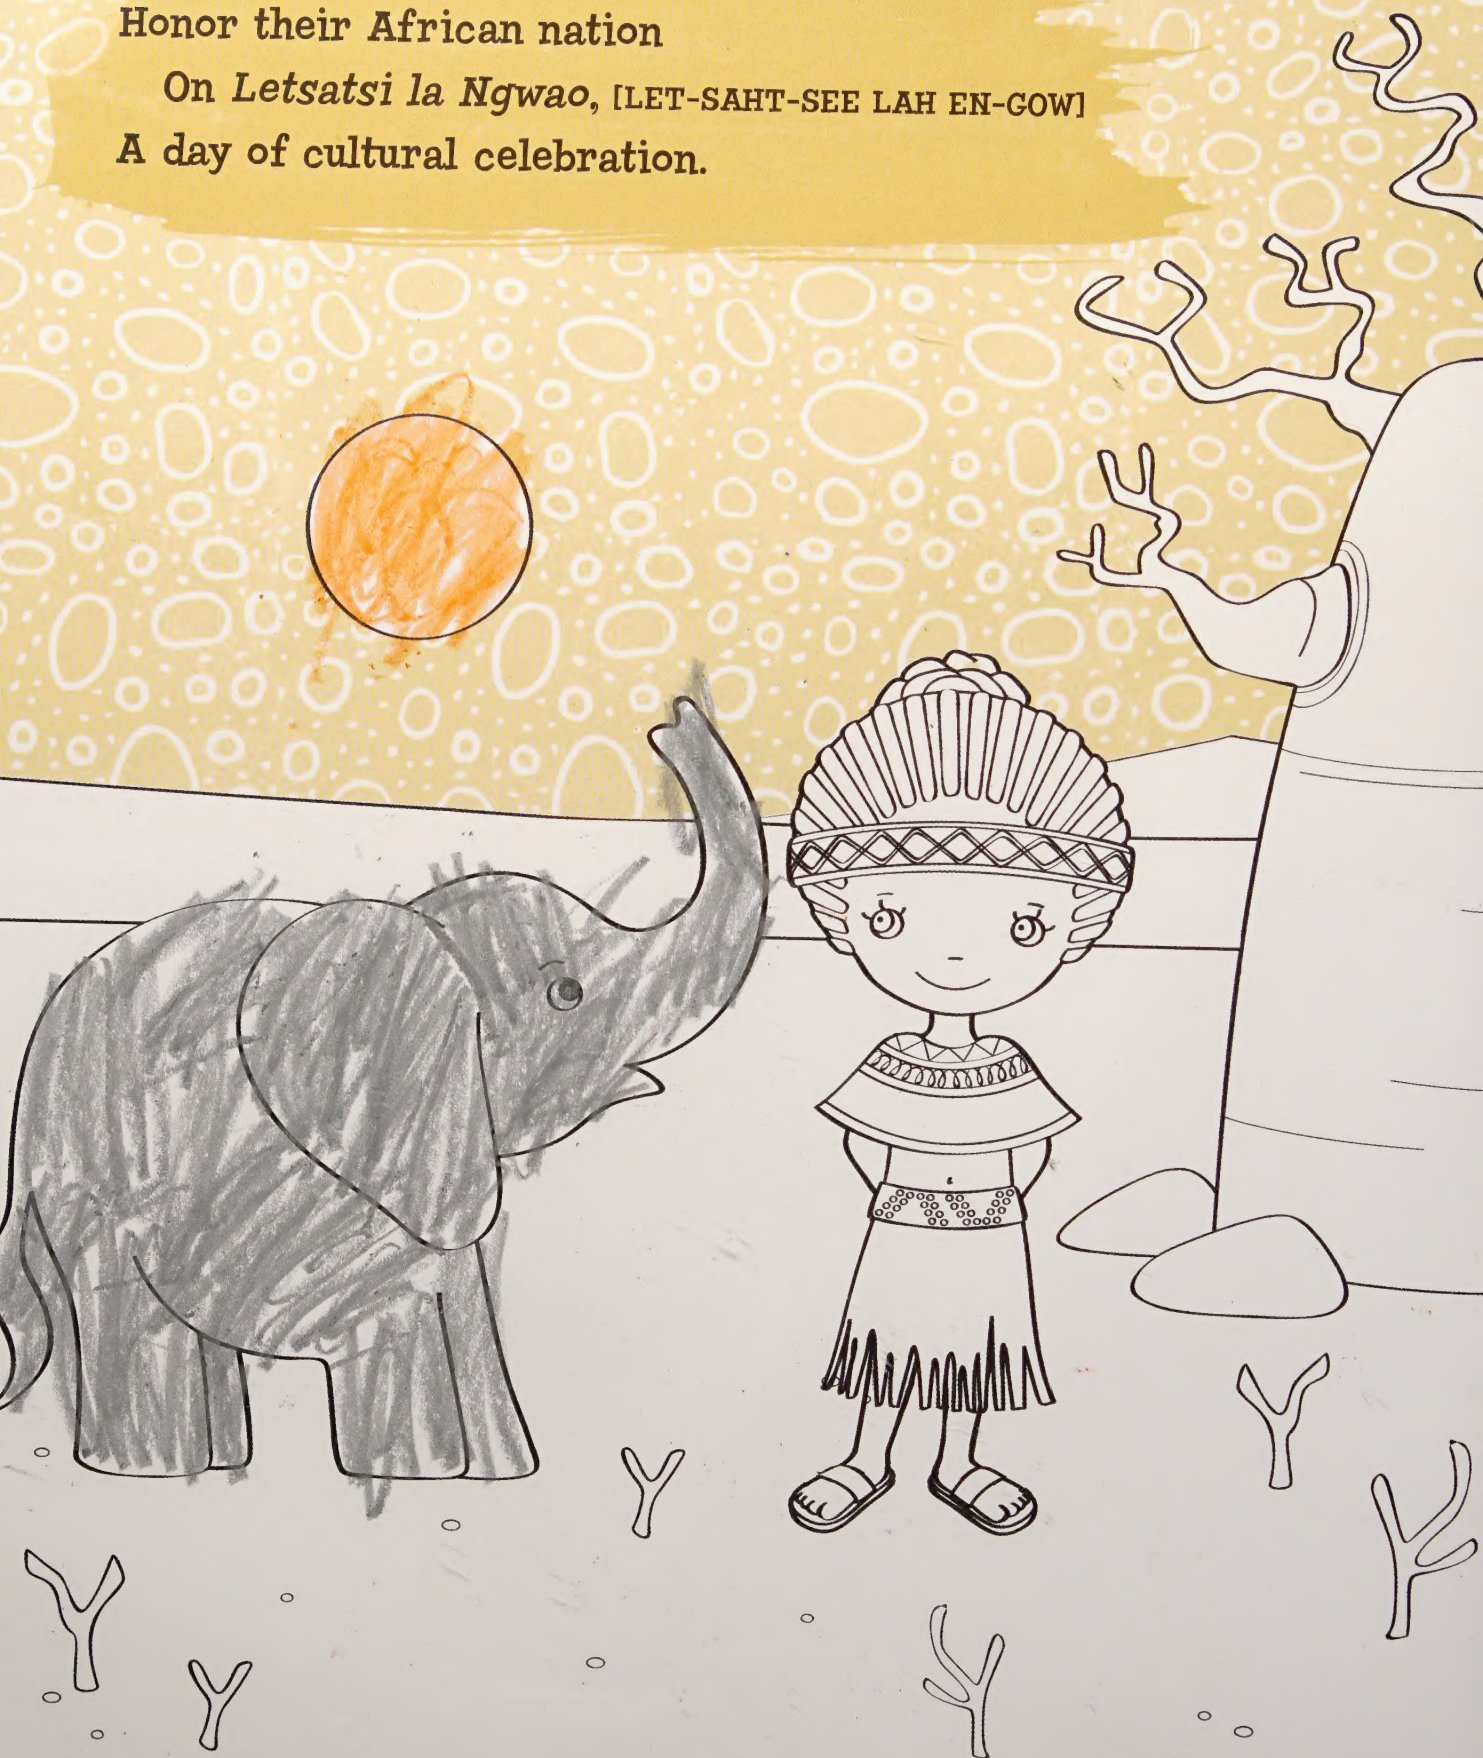

from

Botswana

With dance and parades Botswana's girls
Honor their African nation
On Letsatsi la Ngwao, [LET-SAHT-SEE LAH EN-GOW]
A day of cultural celebration.

LI MING
from
China

Colorful silks—red, gold, and black—
Make Chinese girls shine bright.
With a mandarin jacket, pants, and shoes,
This outfit is just right.

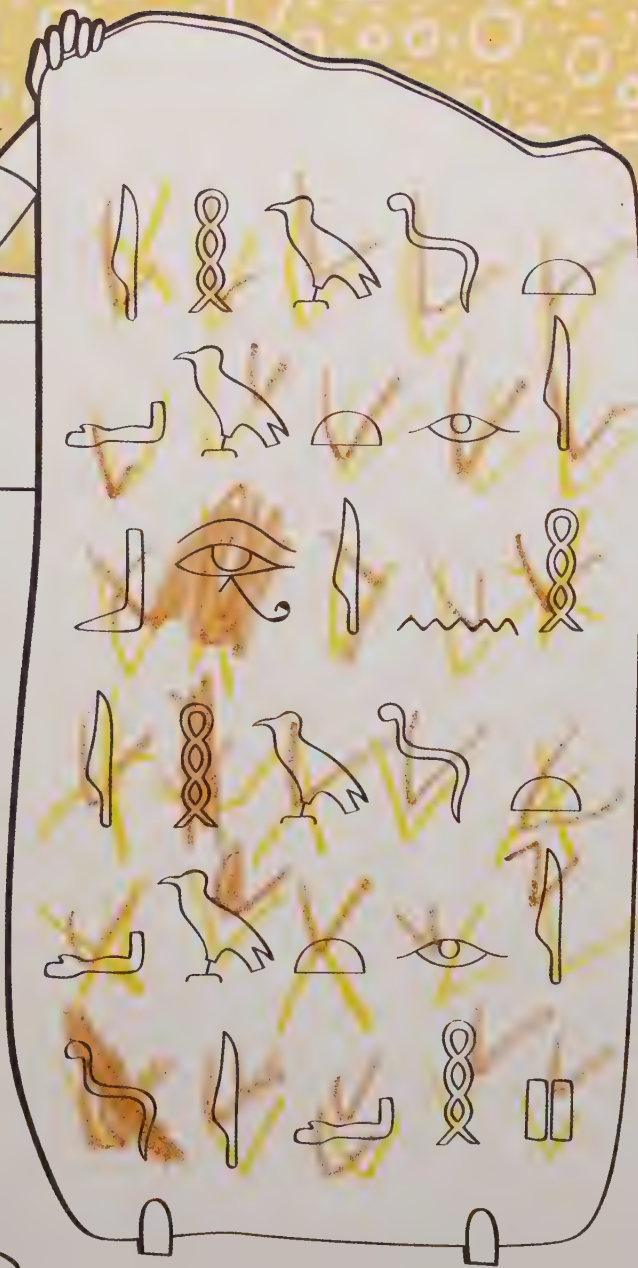

LAYLA

from
Egypt

When Queens and Pharaohs ruled,
Here's what Egyptian princesses did:
They wore white cotton dresses with golden collars
In the land of the pyramid

ESMERALDA

from
Mexico

Mexican girls wear ponchos and skirts
In their mountainous, rainforest-y land.
They dance and clap along to
A merry Mariachi band.

ATIN

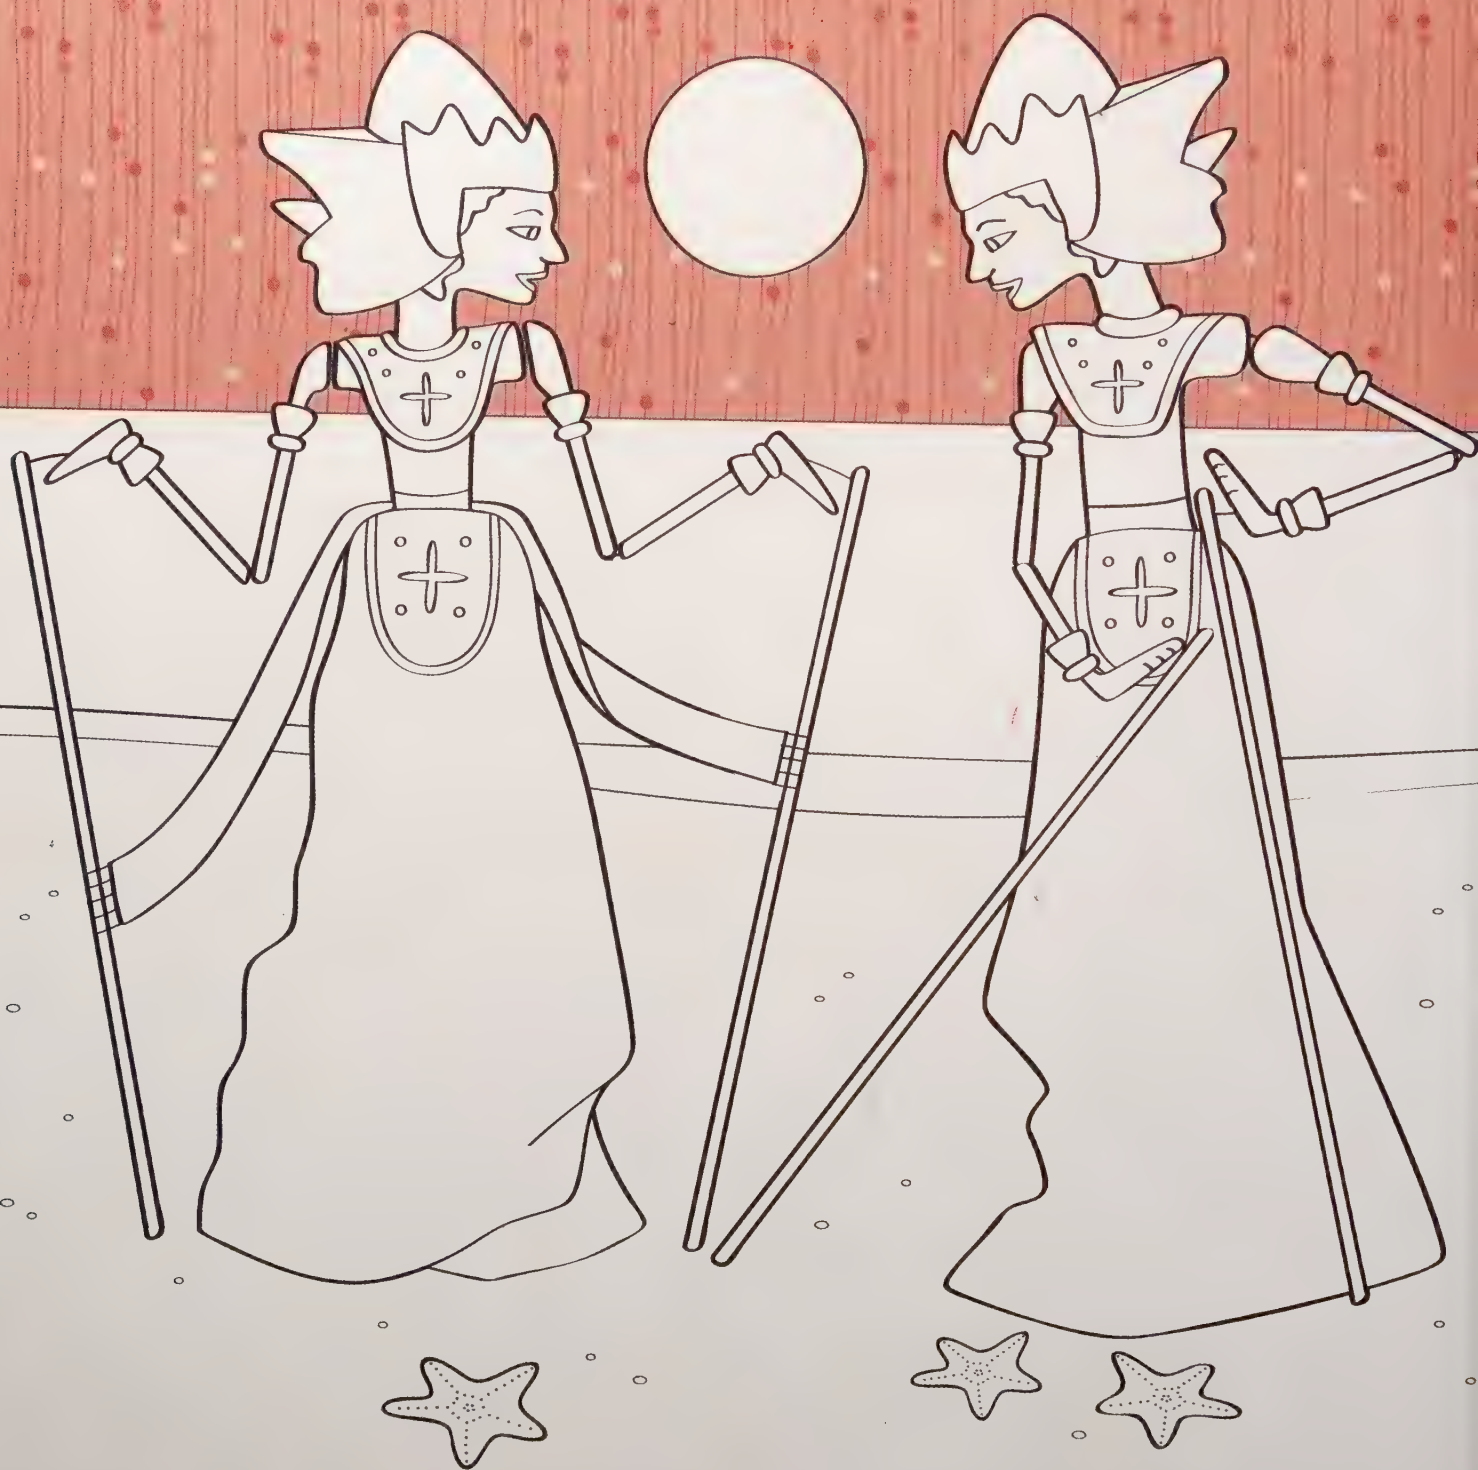

from
Bali

Balinese dances tell stories of
History, joy, and drama.

The Bali "welcome dance" is called
Tari Panyembrama. [TAH-REE PAN-YEM-BRAH-MAH]

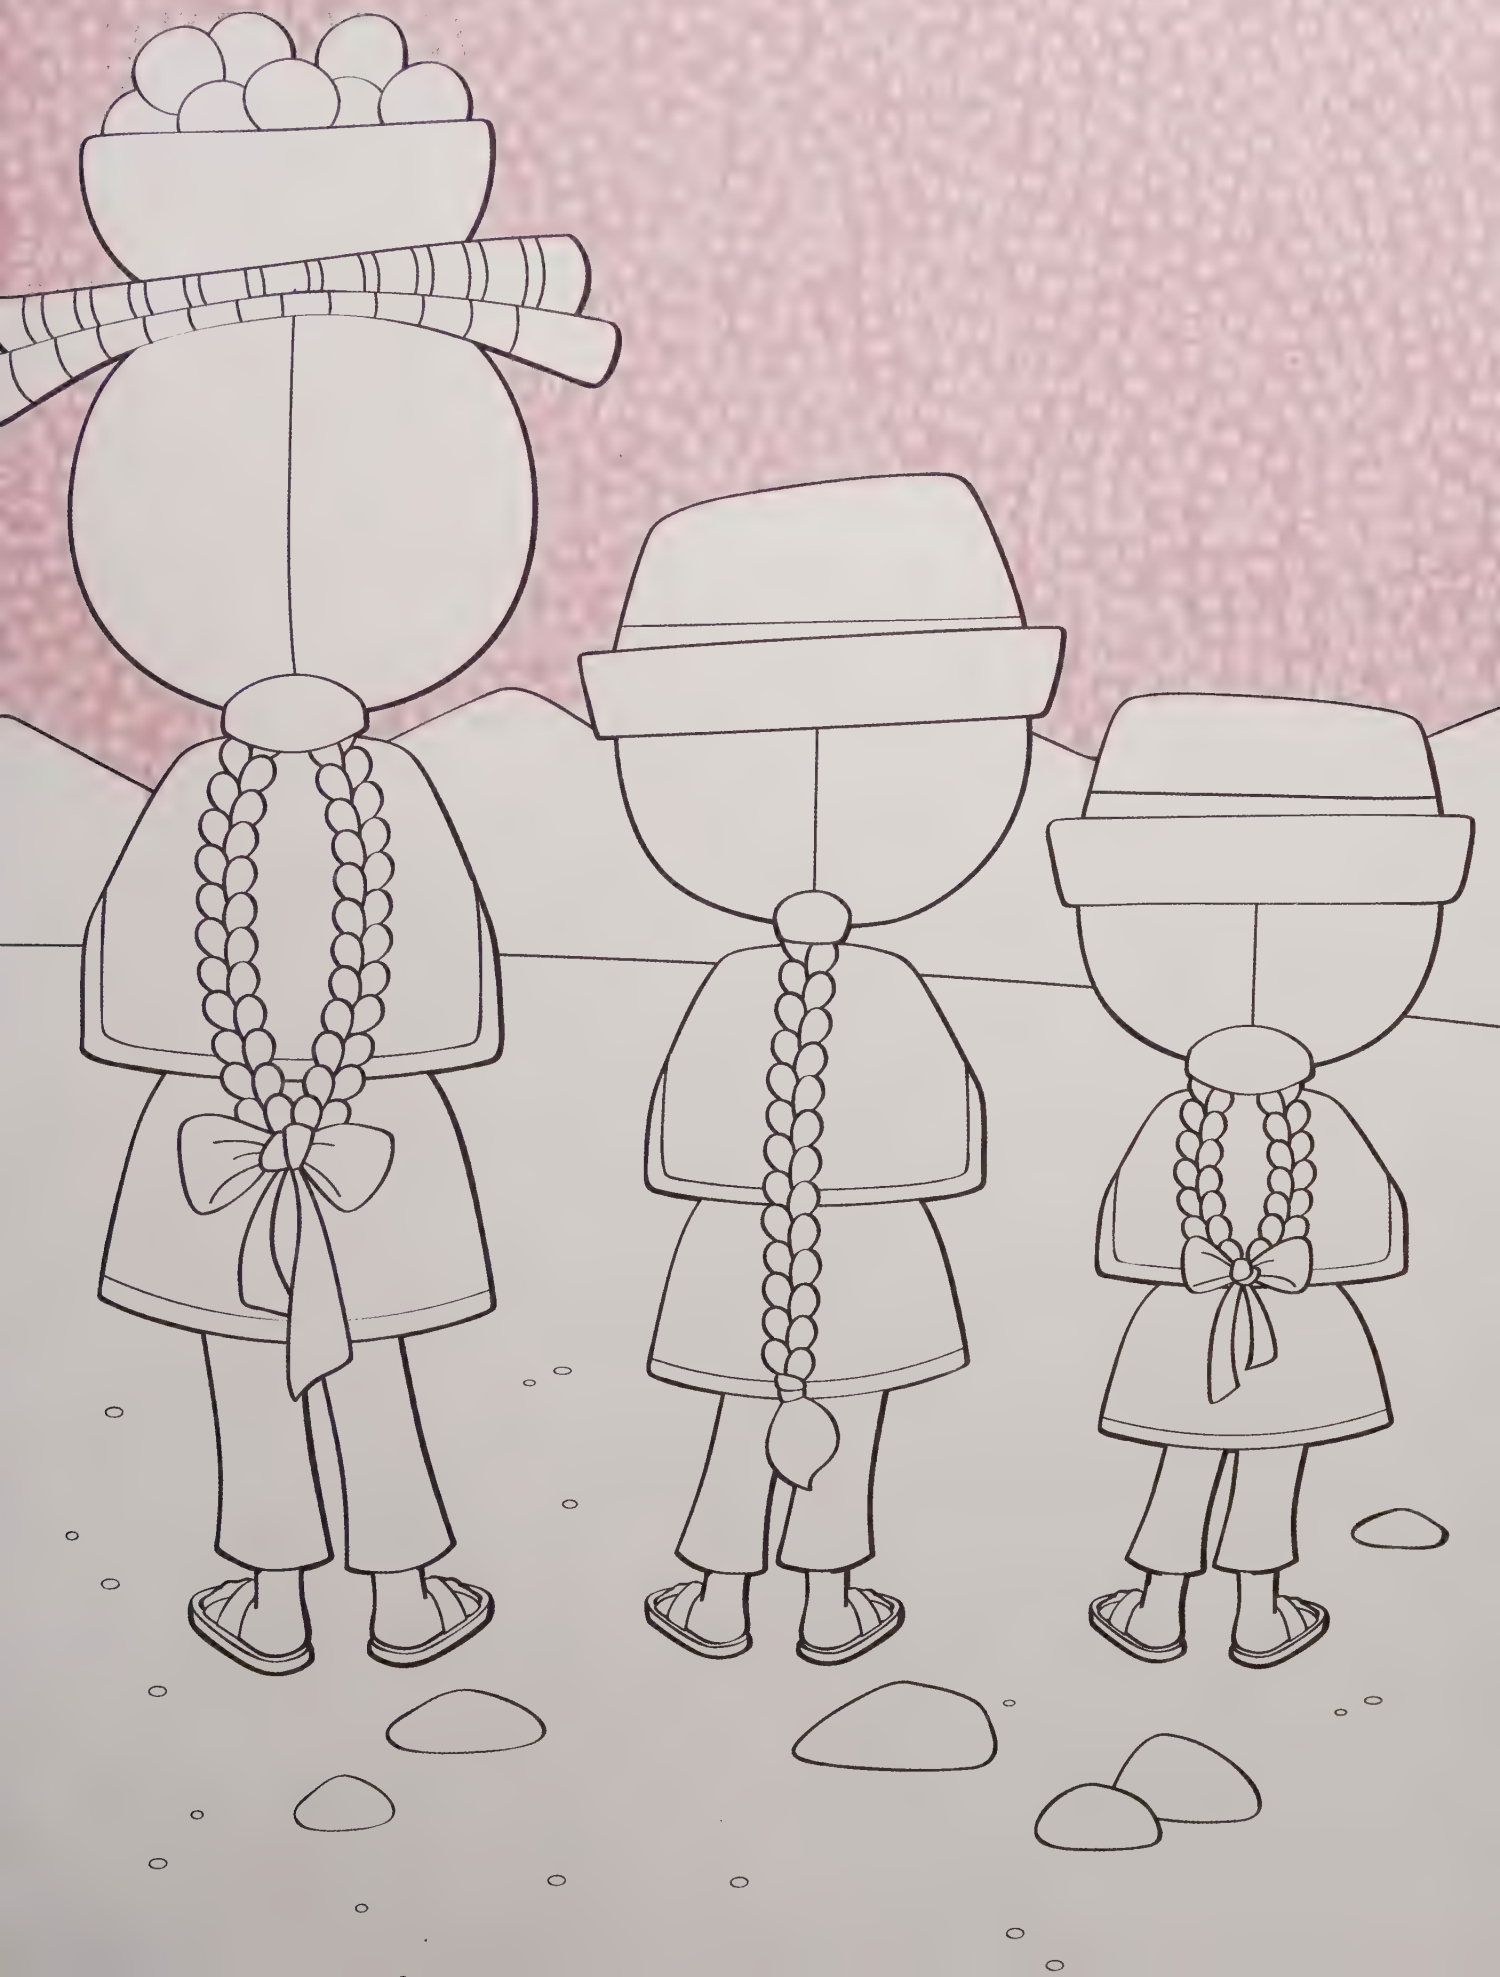

ALMAYENA

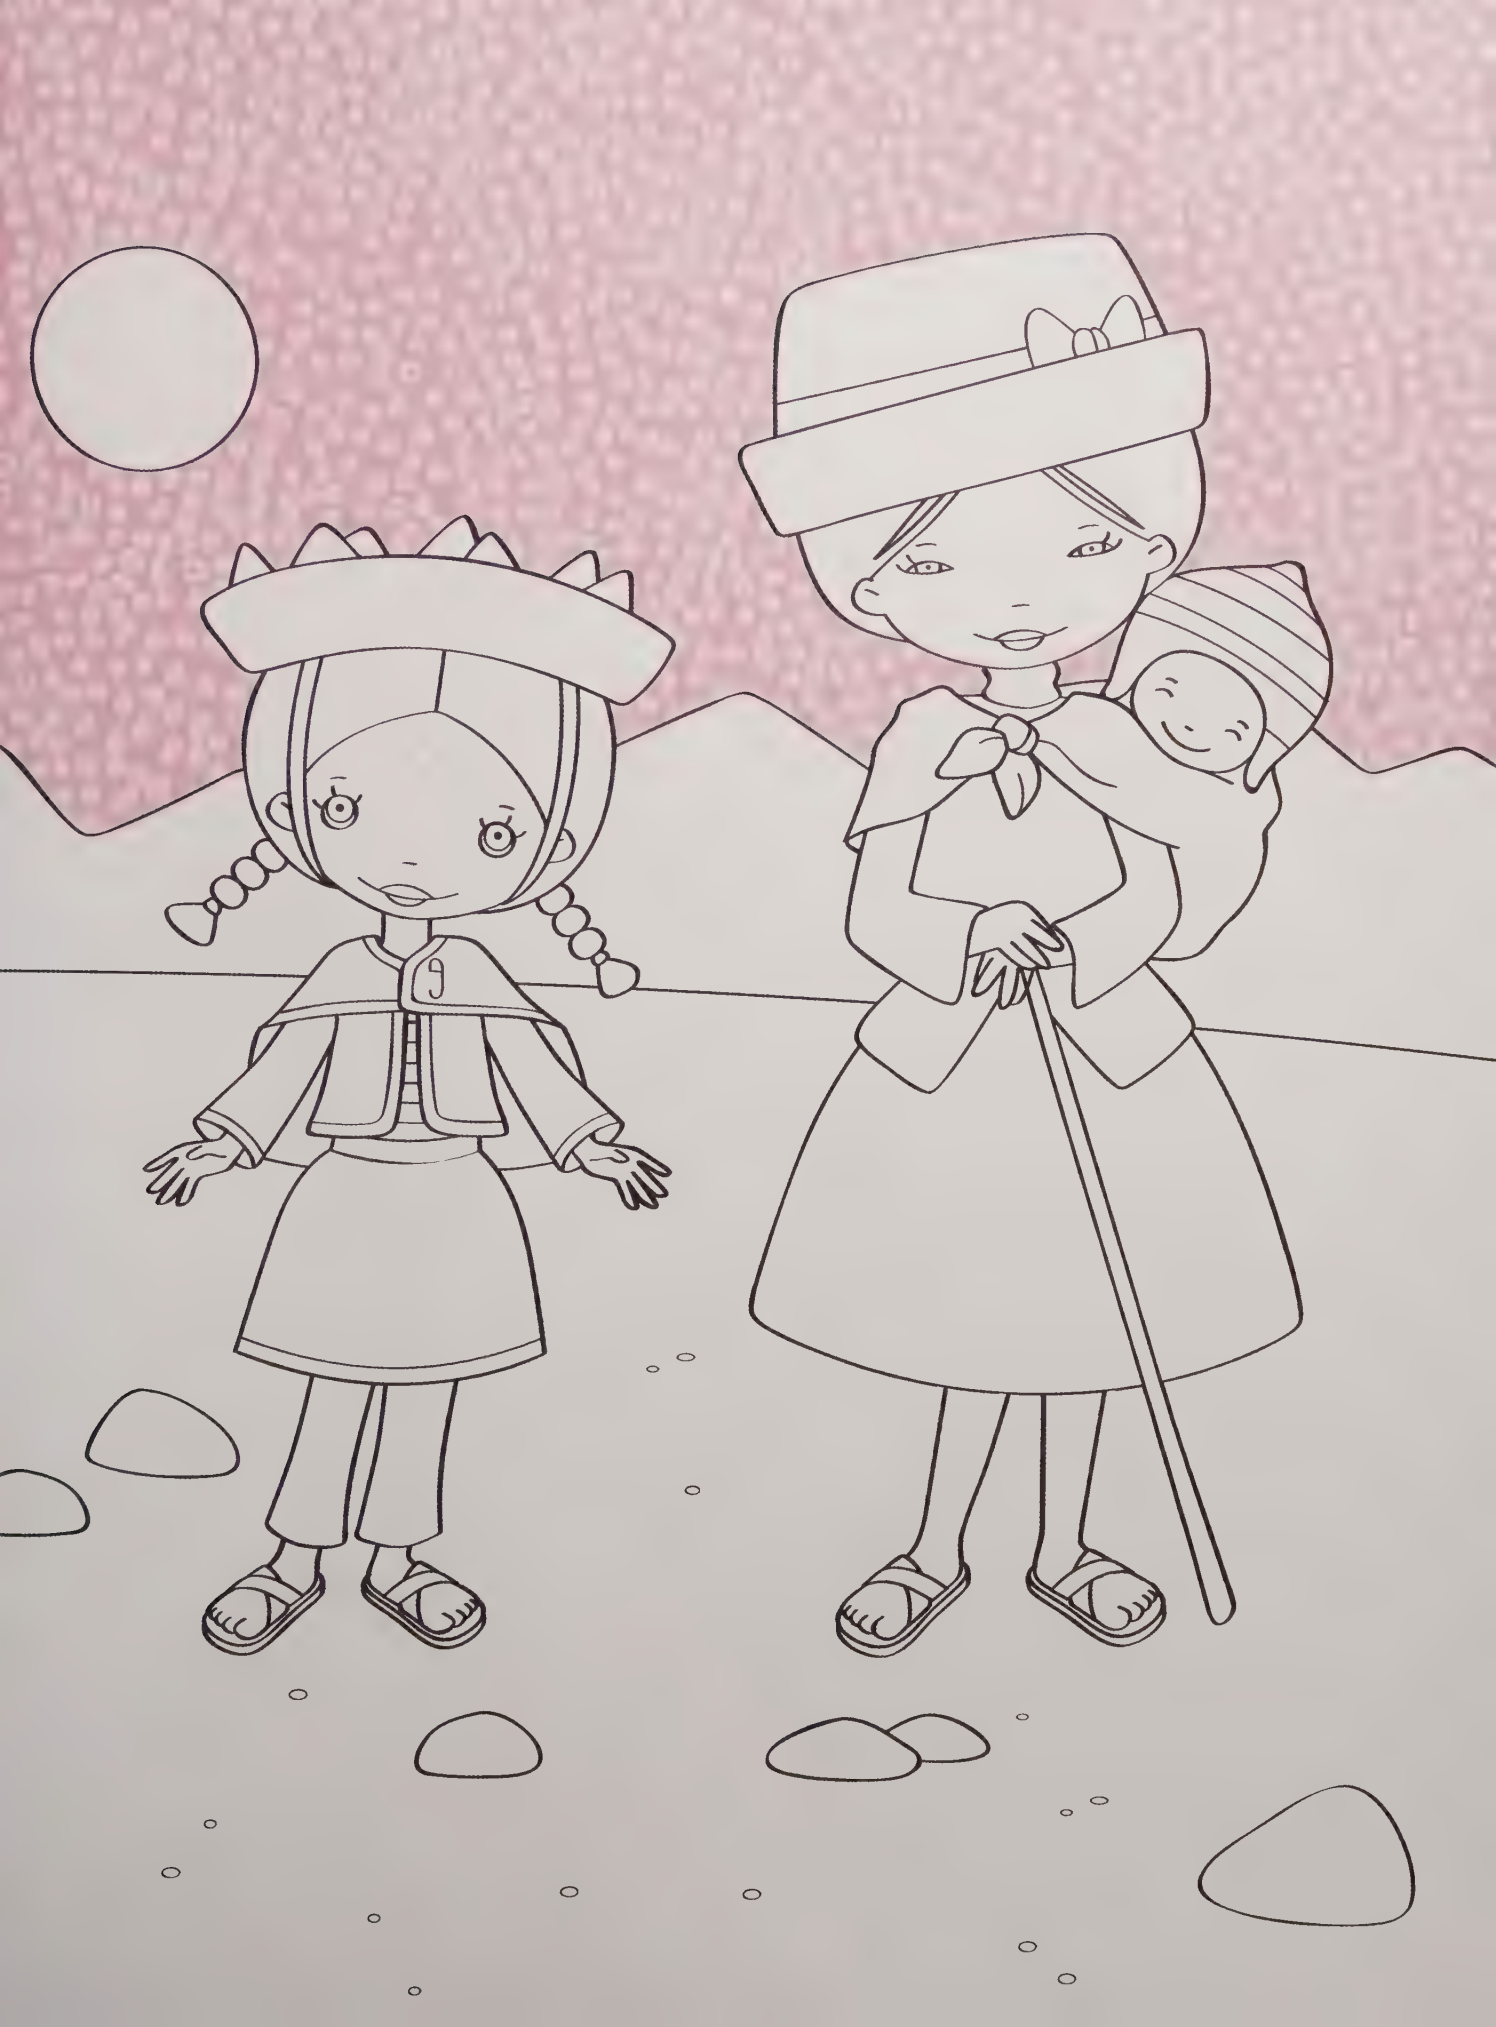

from
Peru

A lliclla [YEE-KYAH] worn around the shoulders,
A pollera [POH-YER-UH] in brightest red,
A Peruvian girl caps off her outfit
With a hat atop her head.

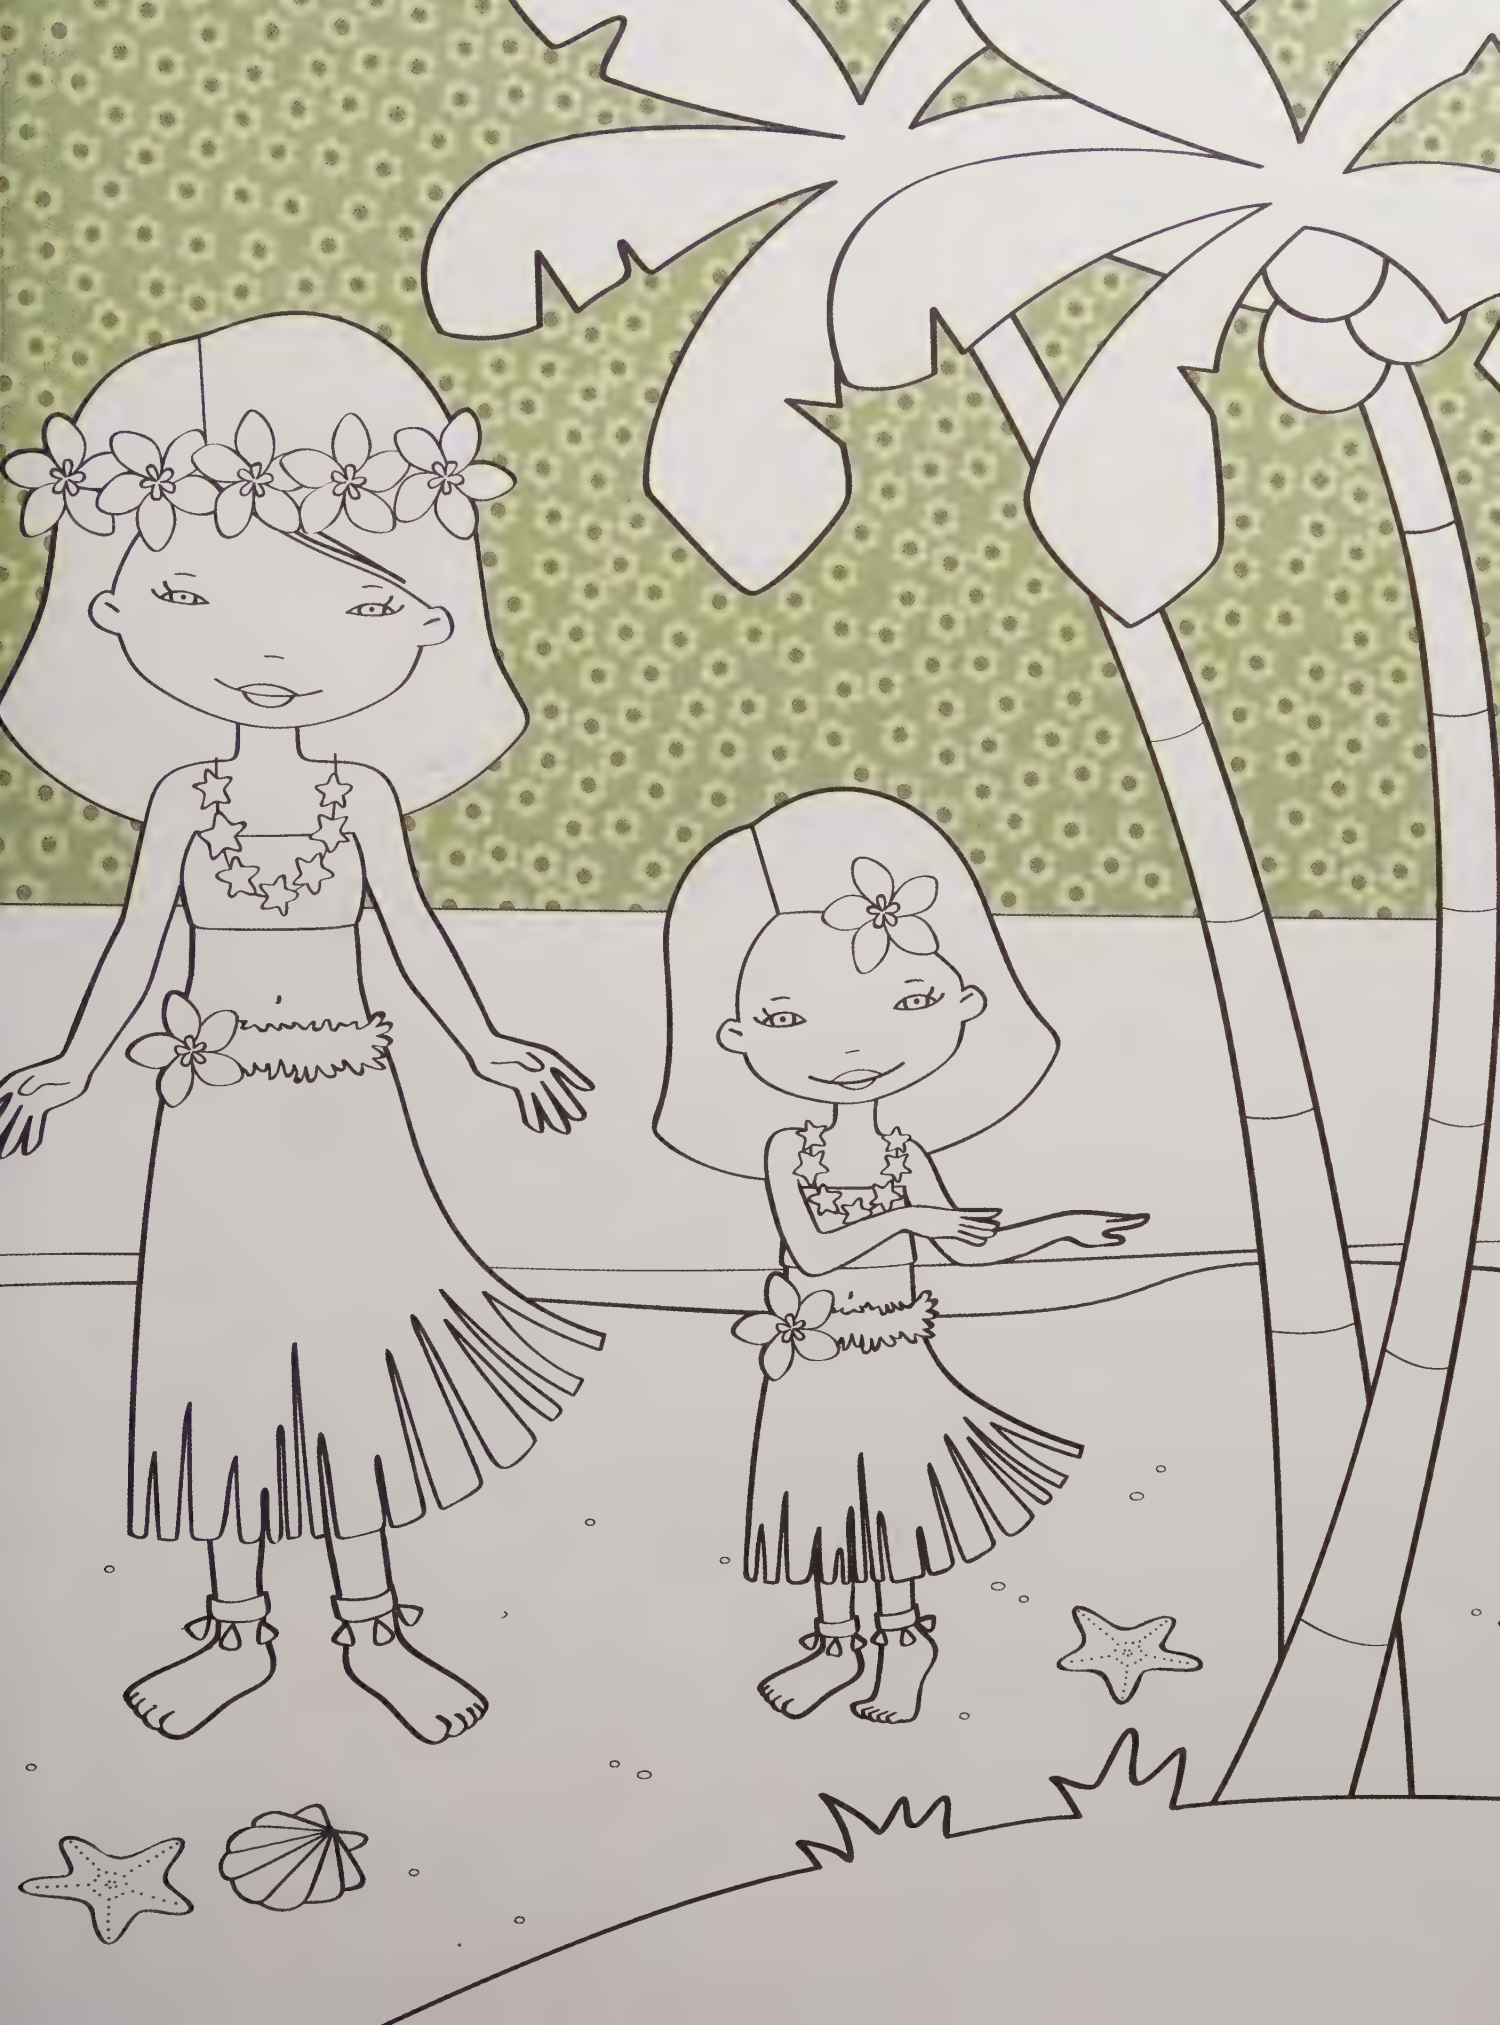

IHOA

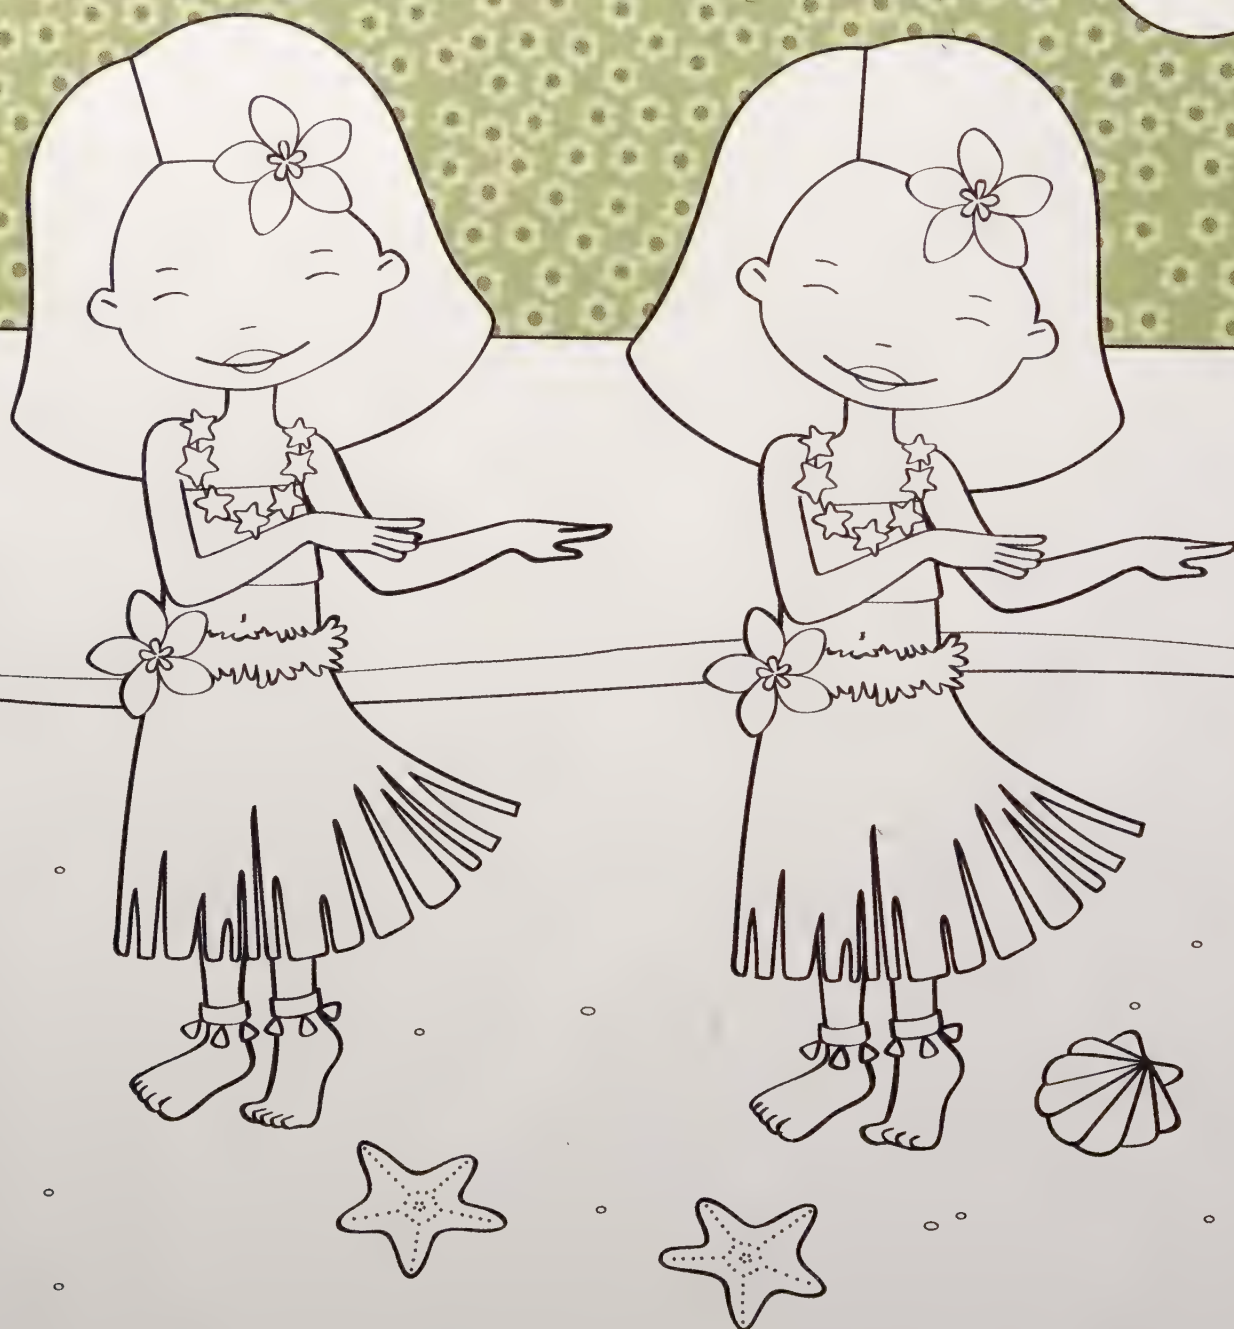

from

Polynesia

Where Pacific breezes blow
And palm trees sway along,
Polynesian girls wear skirts of grass
To dance their island's song.

ALEXIA

from
Greece

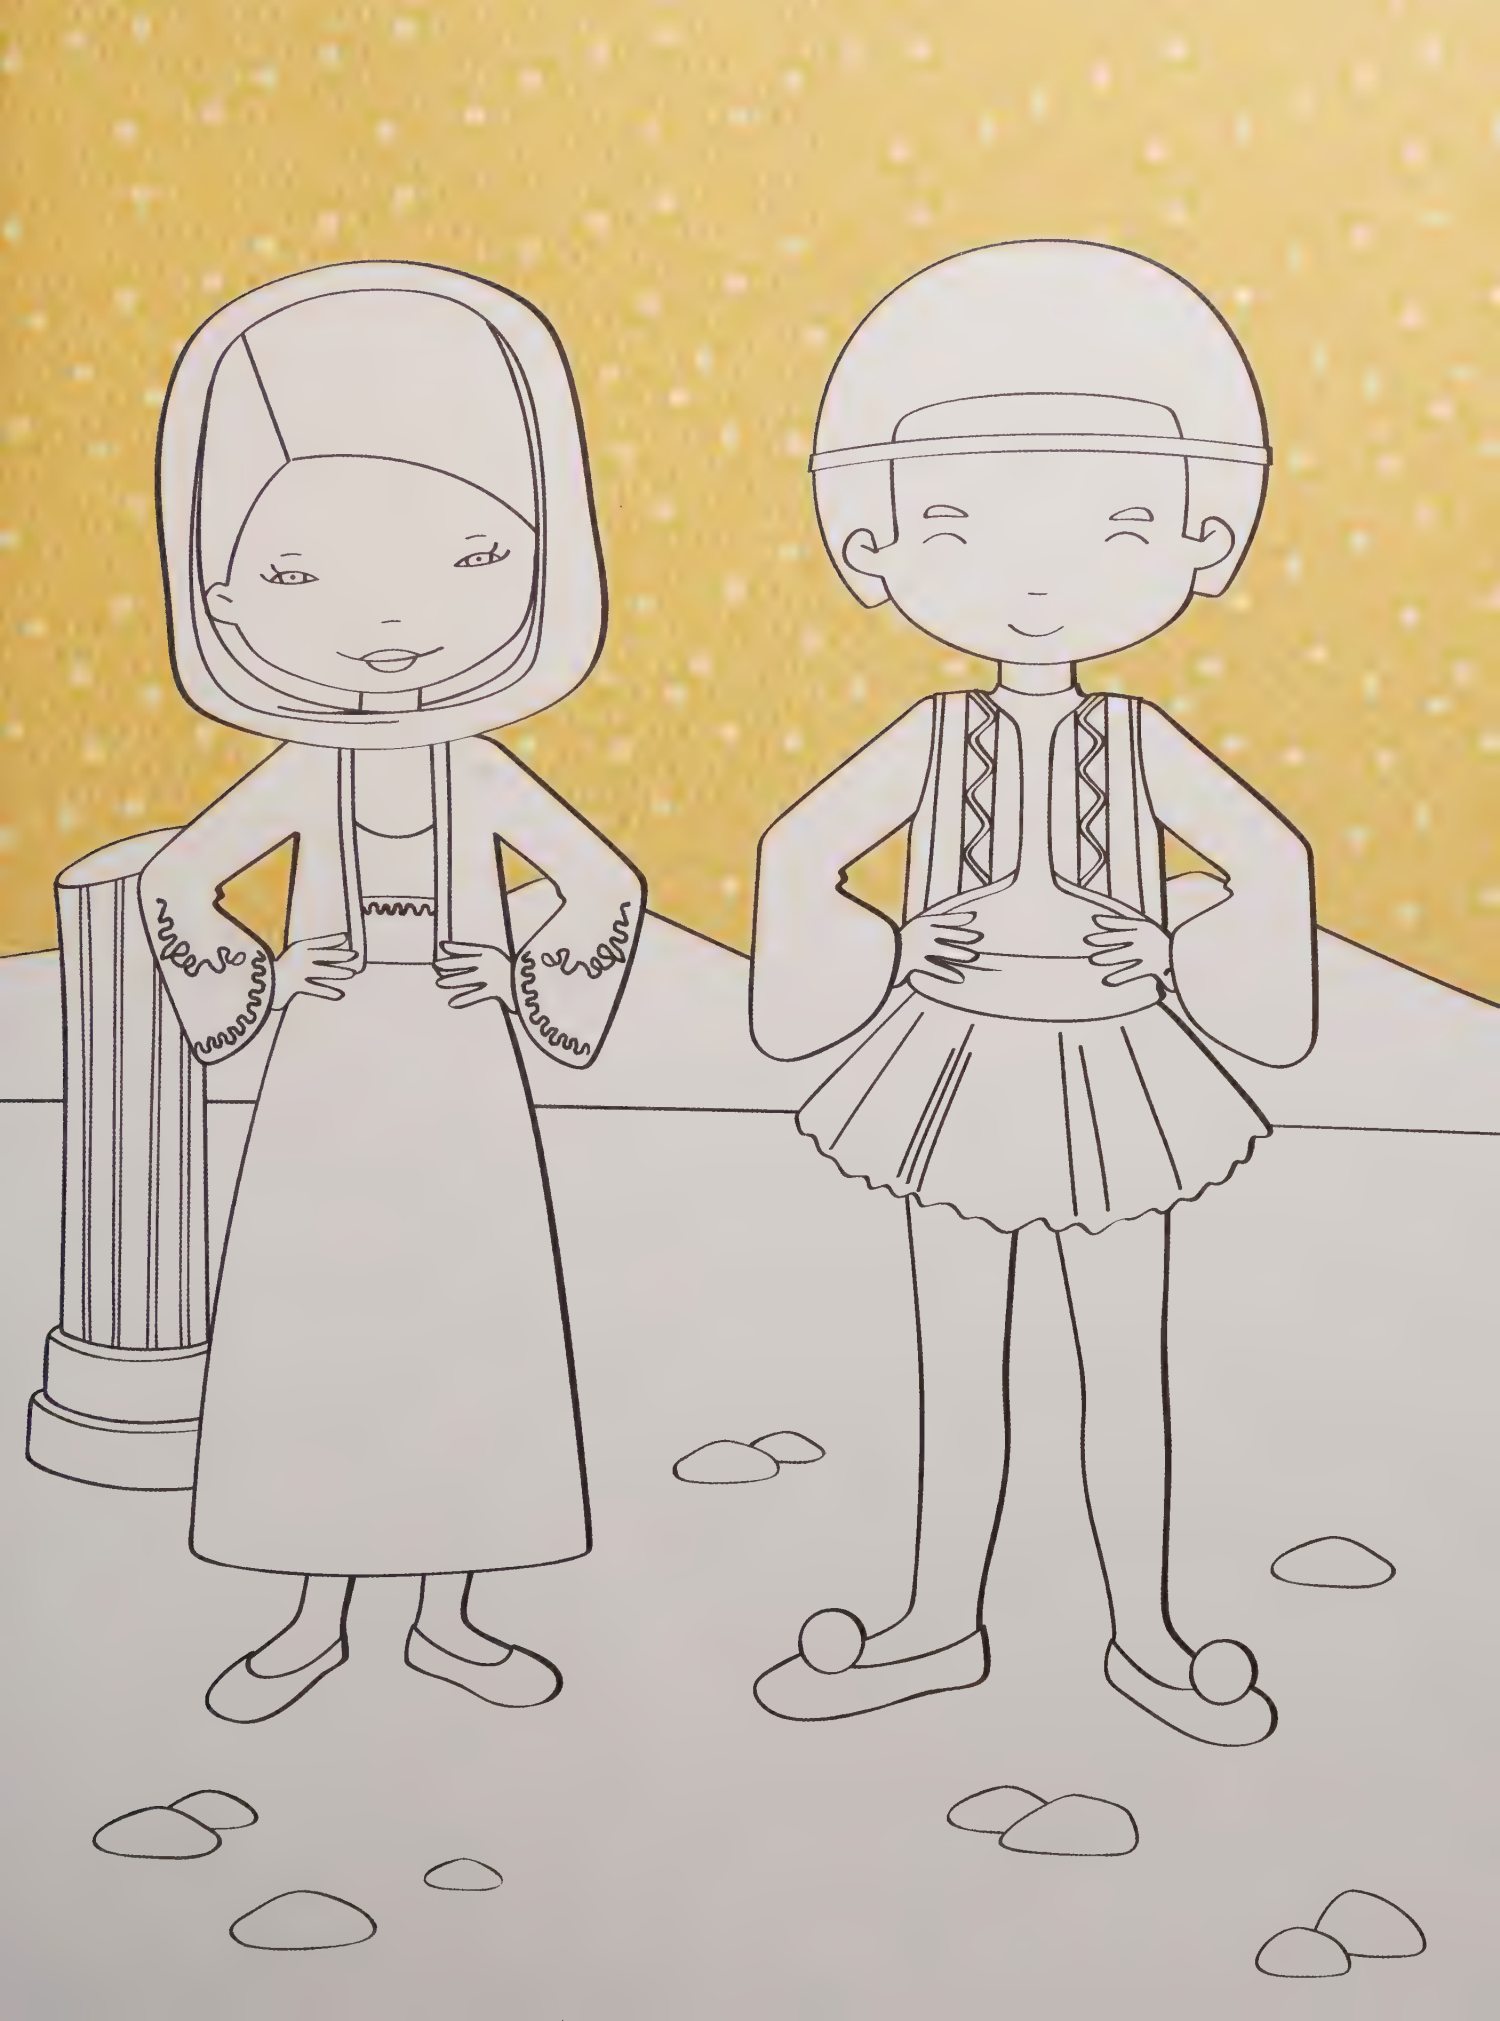

Girls wear headscarves, aprons, blouses
In Athens and Corfu.

And as for skirts, did you know this:
Greek boys wear them, too!

IRINUSHKA

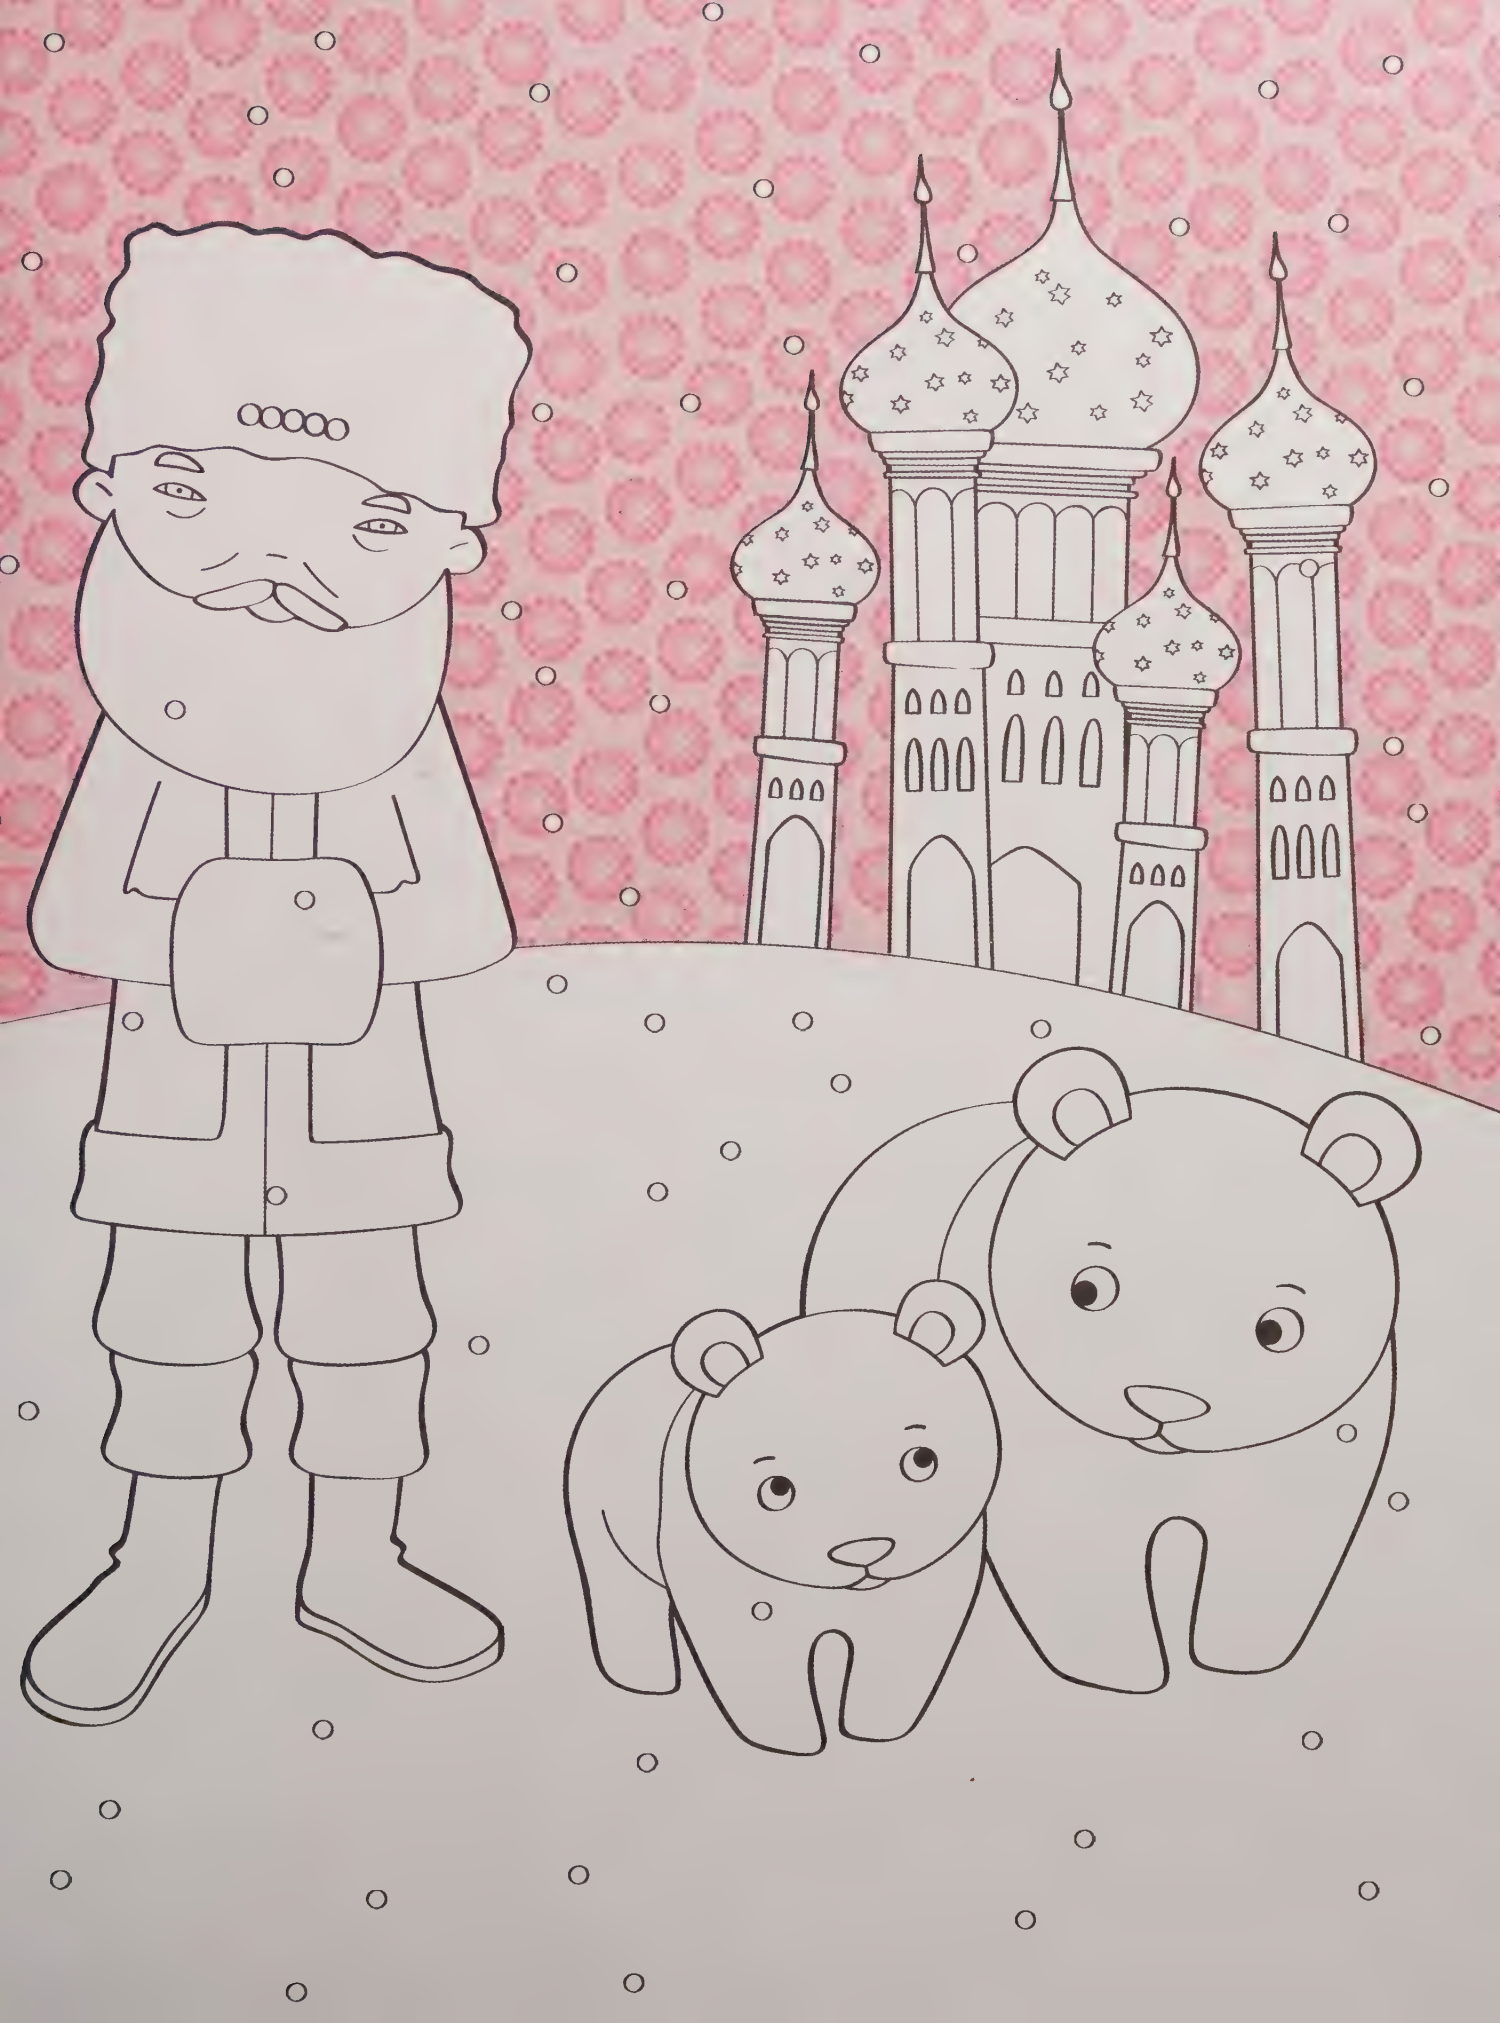

from
Russia

A Russian matryoshka doll might be
A mother, a princess, or bride.
Open her up and you will find
A smaller doll inside!

ANANDA

from
Spain

Clickety-clackety castanets,
Guitars and clapping hands.
Spanish girls are all a-twirl
When they flamenco dance.

OLGA
from
Sweden

Swedish girls in folkdräkt costumes,
So lively when they dance,
Stay colorful in sun or snow,
In this land where reindeer prance.

[A folkdräkt costume has a skirt, vest, white blouse, a bonnet, and aprons.]

ISHANA

from
India

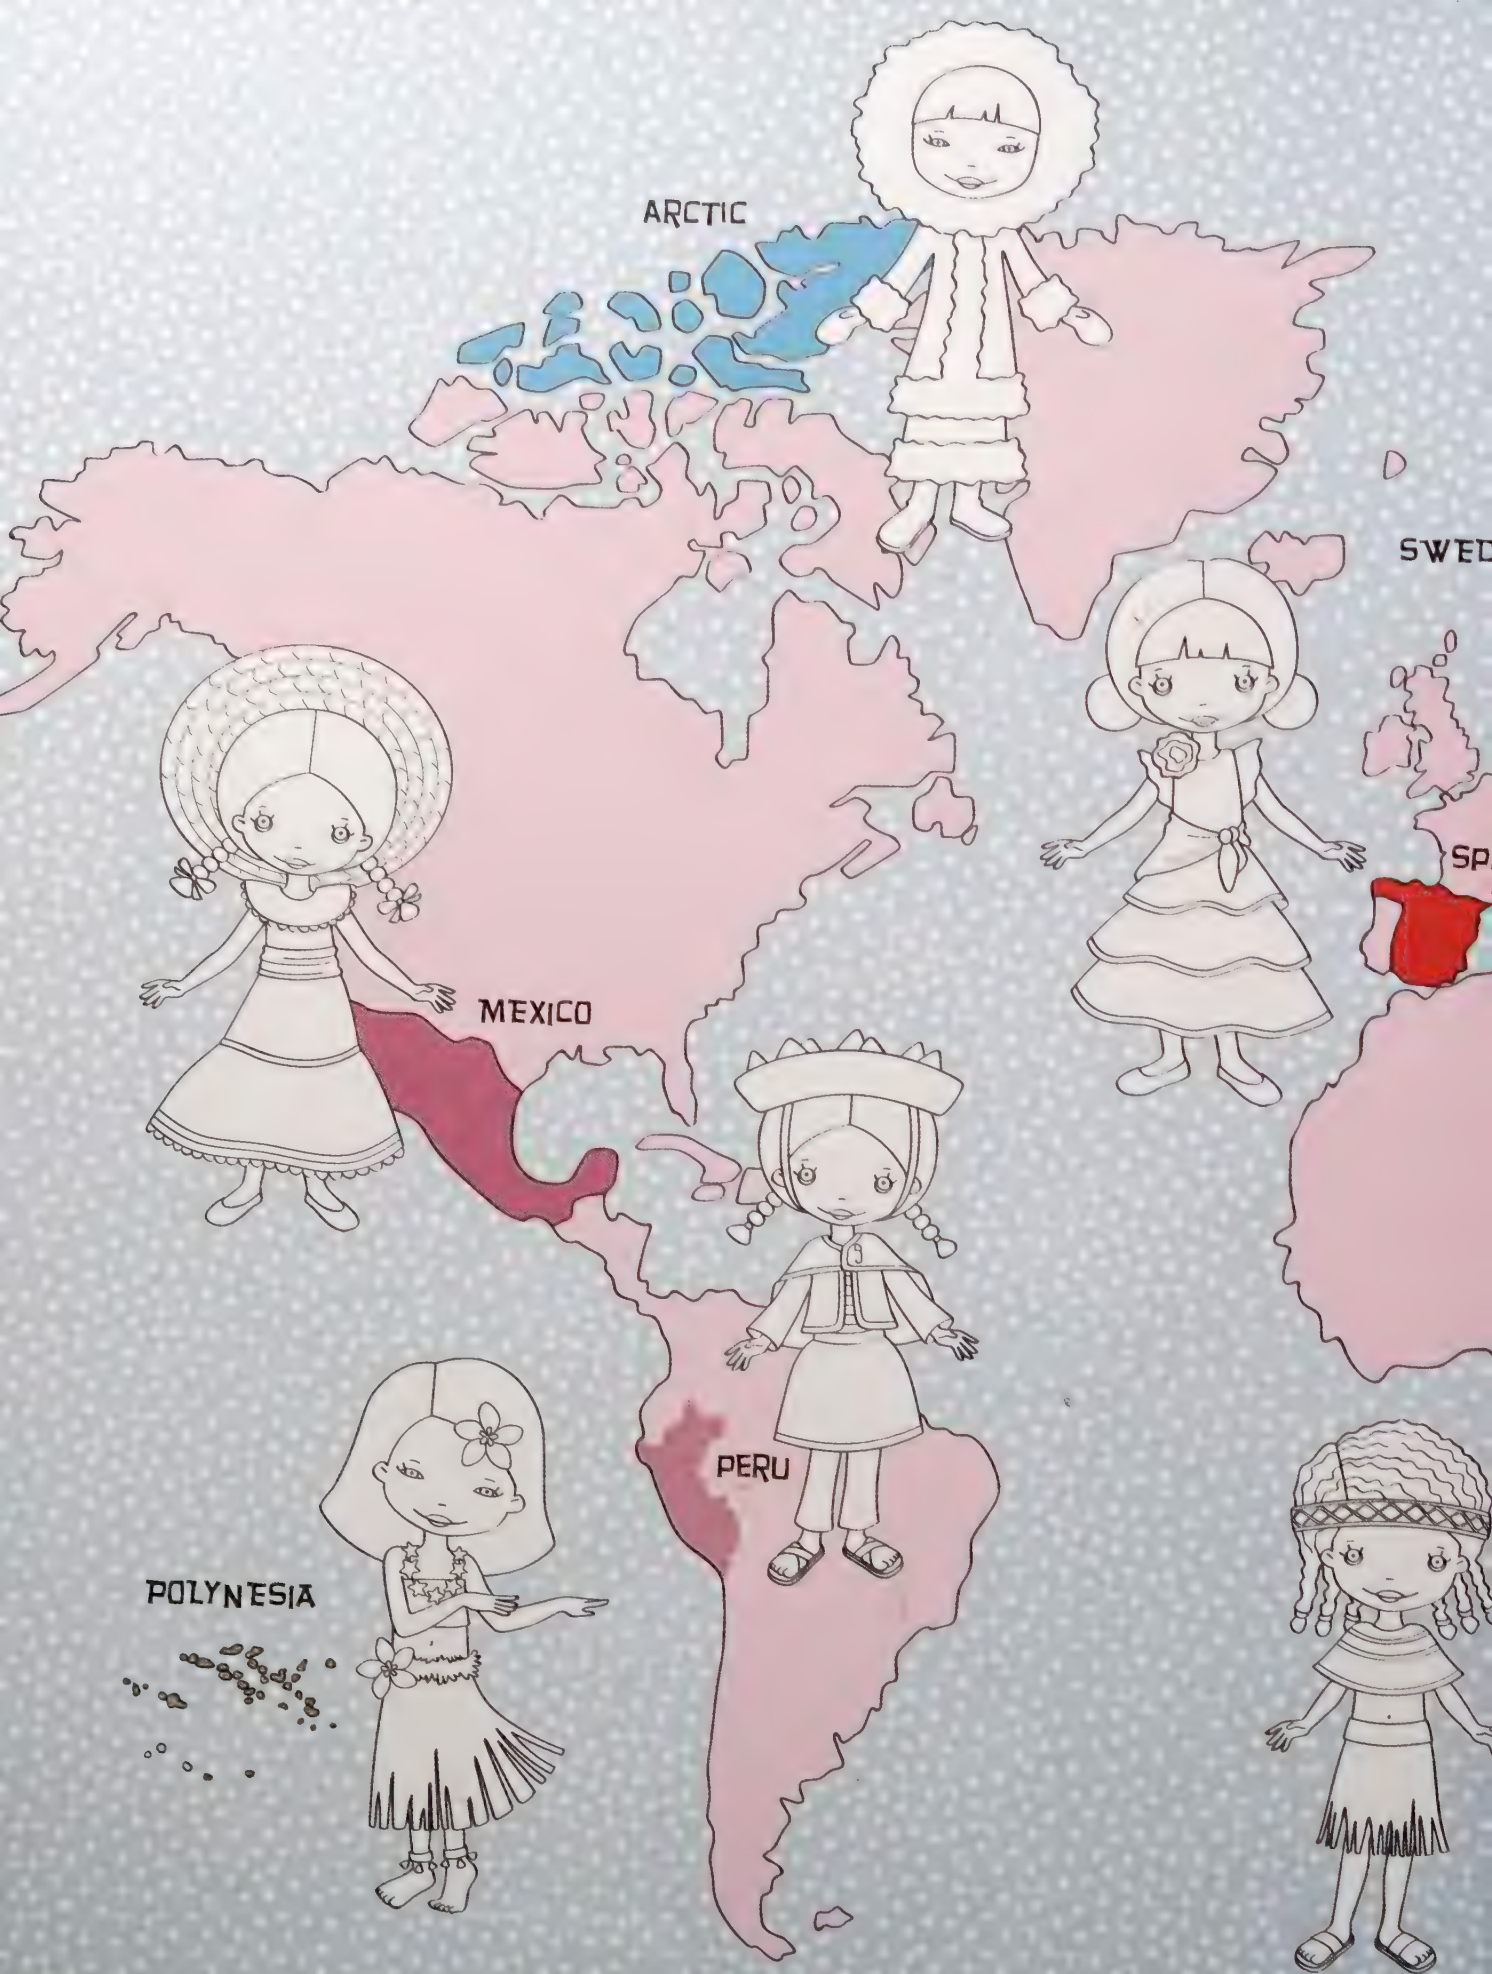

Indian girls wear sandals and saris
of every type and hue.

They place their palms together to say
"Namaste" to you.

[NAH-MAH-STAY means both "hello" and "goodbye."]
